EDITORIAL SUPPORT

Andrea Calabretta
Schultz & Williams

Dear Friend,

This issue of Tibet Watch went to print on the heels of a tremendous outpouring of support for Tibet during our 2024 Tibet Lobby Day events in Washington, DC as well as the 65th anniversary of the Tibetan National Uprising on March 10, which was recognized around the world.

In our feature story on pages 4-5, you can read about the record-breaking number of participants who came to DC, many of whom spent three days both lobbying political leaders on Capitol Hill and honoring the past 65 years of the Tibet movement. We are so grateful for each and every supporter who participated, whether in person or virtually from home.

These events sent a clear message to China: the Tibetan people will never give up until China's occupation comes to an end. This year's lobbying focus was the Resolve Tibet Act, which calls on China to return to the negotiating table. It passed the House with broad, bipartisan support in February and is now being reviewed in the Senate.

A petition on page 11 asks for your help in calling on US Senators to take this crucial bill to its next phase of passage. I hope you'll complete and return that petition as soon as possible.

Elsewhere in these pages, you can read about positive developments at the UN Periodic Review of China, with an unprecedented number of UN member states raising China's oppression in Tibet (page 6). ICT has also released a new report about two large-scale policy initiatives by the CCP—rural revitalization and national parks—that are resulting in a tightening grip on Tibet (page 9).

I hope you'll also take a look at this year's Rowell Fund for Tibet grantees, with some extremely promising projects that span women's health, Tibetan art, and more (page 10).

You'll find beautiful photos of Losar celebrations at ICT headquarters and the State Department on page 7. Don't miss some interesting new print and digital media on Tibet highlighted on page 9, and a special welcome for our new staff member Tsejin Khando on page 10.

Before you close these pages, let me remind you to lend your voice to the petition on page 11, which will help us push for passage of the Resolve Tibet Act in the Senate.

From all of us at ICT – wishing you a peaceful and prosperous year of the Wood Dragon, and thank you for all you do to support the Tibet movement!

In solidarity,

Tencho Gyatso

Tencho Gyatso

65 YEARS OF TIBETAN RESISTANCE & RESILIENCE:

Tibet Lobby Day & the 65th Anniversary of the Tibetan National Uprising

“Over the last more than 60 years of our living in exile, host India and its people, the United States of America, and Europe, as well as governments and peoples in other parts of the world, besides various groups and organizations as well as private individuals, have extended support and provided help and relief for Tibet and the Tibetan people. To all of them, I take the opportunity provided by this solemn occasion to express our heartfelt gratitude.”

—Statement from the Tibetan Parliament in Exile on the 65th Anniversary of the Tibetan National Uprising

This March brought a tremendous wave of Tibet support to Washington, DC, and cities around the world.

To mark the 65th anniversary of the historic Tibetan National Uprising of March 10, 1959, Tibetan Americans and Tibet supporters rallied outside China’s embassy in the US capital, then marched through the streets chanting “China out of Tibet now!” and “Long live the Dalai Lama!” on their way to the White House.

The next day, March 11, many of those same advocates took part in a record-setting Tibet Lobby Day on Capitol Hill, meeting with members of the House and Senate to urge their support for US legislation on Tibet.

That very day, a new bipartisan piece of legislation condemning China’s mass arrest of peaceful Tibetan protestors and reaffirming the House’s support for the Tibetan people’s right to self-determination was introduced by two members of the House, Rep. Jim McGovern (D-MA) and Rep. Young Kim (R-CA).

That evening, several members of Congress and other US and Tibetan leaders attended a special event cohosted by The Office of Tibet and ICT called “Tibet Alive,” recognizing 65 years of resistance and resilience by the Tibetan people.

The next day, March 12, advocates continued Tibet Lobby Day events with several more meetings with senators and representatives, bringing the total number of meetings to nearly 100 and adding an exclamation point to a remarkable three days of Tibet support on Capitol Hill. ICT helped organize the week’s events alongside other Tibet groups. President Tencho Gyatso said:

“These past few days in Washington have sent strong messages. For the US government, the message was that Tibetan Americans appreciate their support and want them to pass new legislation to help peacefully resolve China’s oppression in Tibet. For the Tibetan people, the message was that Congress will continue to support their just cause.”

“For China, the message was loud and clear: Congress wants the Chinese government to get back to the negotiating table with Tibetan leaders, and even after 65 years, the Tibetan people will never let go of their resistance and resilience until China’s occupation of Tibet comes to an end.”

TIBET LOBBY DAY

The energy of the March 10 activism fed into an unprecedented Tibet Lobby Day in Washington.

The event, organized annually by ICT, brought a record number of more than 200 Tibetan Americans and Tibet supporters to Capitol Hill for meetings with senators, representatives, and Congressional staff. An additional 2,735 supporters participated virtually by submitting online petitions to their lawmakers.

Lobby Day participants met directly with Sens. Todd Young (R-IN), Jeff Merkley (D-OR), Mike Braun (R-IN), Jack Reed (D-RI), and Tina Smith (D-MN); Speaker Emerita Pelosi; Reps. Jim McGovern (D-MA), Don Beyer (D-VA), Joe Courtney (D-CT), Raja Krishnamoorthi (D-IL), and Grace Meng (D-NY); and nearly 100 Congressional offices in total.

During their discussions, participants asked the Congressional leaders to support and pass the Resolve Tibet Act in the Senate and get it signed into law. This bipartisan bill, which passed the House in February, will pressure the Chinese government to renew dialogue with Tibetan leaders to reach a negotiated agreement on Tibet's status.

Lobby Day participants also asked Congress to support the Tibetans protesting in eastern Tibet against a hydropower dam project that would reportedly force residents of two villages to abandon their homes and lead to the destruction of six Buddhist monasteries containing murals that are centuries old.

As Lobby Day proceeded, two members of the House—Rep. Jim McGovern (D-MA) and Rep. Young Kim (R-CA)—heeded the call by introducing a resolution titled, “Recognizing the 65th anniversary of the Tibetan Uprising Day of March 10, 1959, and condemning human rights violations related to the hydropower dam construction project in Derge.”

The bipartisan resolution demands the immediate release of a thousand protestors detained arbitrarily by China and calls on the Biden administration to urge Chinese authorities to halt the dam project unless China takes local Tibetans' views into account.

In addition, the resolution recognizes the 65th anniversary of the Dalai Lama's escape into exile and confirms the House's “longstanding support for the human rights, including the right of self-determination, of the Tibetan people.”

TIBET ALIVE

A special event at the Capitol Visitors Center inside the US Capitol on the evening of March 11 gave Tibetan Americans and Tibet supporters the chance to look back on the past 65 years of the Tibet movement.

“Tibet Alive: 65 Years of Resistance and Resilience” chronicled the past six-and-a-half decades of Tibetan history inside Tibet and in exile. The event, organized by the Office of Tibet and ICT, featured tributes to different eras.

Tenzin Namgyal Tethong, former chairman of the Tibetan Kashag (cabinet), former representative of the Office of Tibet in New York and the founding president of ICT, spoke about the events leading up to and following the 1959 Tibetan Uprising. Afterward, John Ackerly, another former ICT president and current board member, addressed empowering the Tibetan diaspora through democracy and international support between 1960 and 1989.

Next, Elsie Walker, former ICT Director of Development, Founding Board Member of Tibet House and long time friend of His Holiness and Tibet, talked about increasing global support and reconnection with Tibet in the 1990s. ICT's Head of Research & Monitoring Bhuchung K. Tsering then spoke about the institutionalization of Tibet support in the US, tragedy in Tibet, and dialogue between Tibetans and Chinese in the 21st century.

Finally, Tenzin Kunsal Womatsang, a Tibetan American youth from Virginia, read the English translation of a poem by Tibetan writer Dhi Lhaden, “Do you know the troubled tales of our forefathers?”

WE SEND A BIG THANK YOU

to each and every supporter who participated in the Lobby Day events and the anniversary of the Tibetan National Uprising. Together we can make a difference!

HOUSE PASSES RESOLVE TIBET ACT

On February 15, the US House of Representatives passed a bipartisan bill that will strengthen US efforts to push the Chinese government to resolve the longstanding Tibet-China dispute through dialogue with Tibetan leaders.

Known as the Resolve Tibet Act, the bill aims to pressure the Chinese government to resume negotiations with His Holiness the Dalai Lama's envoys or the democratically elected leaders of the Tibetan people, which have been stalled since 2010.

Introduced by Reps. Jim McGovern

(D-MA) and Michael McCaul (R-TX), the bill dismisses as inaccurate the Chinese claim that Tibet has been part of China since ancient times and empowers the State Department to actively counter China's disinformation about Tibetan history, people and institutions.

Following this vote, focus shifted to passing the Senate version of the legislation, introduced by Sens. Jeff Merkley (D-OR) and Todd Young (R-IN). And as we go to print, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has just unanimously approved the bill, enabling it to move to the Senate floor for a full vote.

In recent years, the US government has dramatically increased its support for Tibet, with Congress passing the Reciprocal Access to Tibet Act of 2018 and the Tibetan Policy and Support Act of 2020.

House approval of the Resolve Tibet Act came as Tibetans prepared to mark 65 years since China forced the Dalai Lama to flee into exile and seized full control of Tibet. After 65 years of Chinese occupation, Tibet now ranks among the least-free countries on Earth alongside South Sudan and Syria, according to the watchdog group Freedom House.

YOUR IMPACT: ICT thanks our members for urging their elected representatives to approve this bill in the House. This legislation has progressed with your support!

TWOFOLD INCREASE IN STATES RAISING TIBET AT UN CHINA REVIEW

An unprecedented number of UN member states raised China's oppression in Tibet as a critical issue during the Chinese government's Universal Periodic Review at the UN Human Rights Council in late January 2024 in Geneva. The Council uses the Universal Periodic Review as a means to assess the human rights record of every UN member state every 4-5 years.

Twenty states took to the floor to challenge China's human rights record in Tibet and to offer recommendations. That number is more than twice the nine states that raised Tibet during China's last Universal Periodic Review in 2018. The increase also reflects the rise in so-called Advanced Questions, which doubled compared to 2018. Member states also made 24 recommendations on Tibet, up from 11 in 2018.

They highlighted in particular the boarding schools that have separated over 1 million Tibetan children from their families, language, religion and culture. Arbitrary detentions and lack of access to Tibet were also topics of concern.

ICT Germany Executive Director Kai Mueller and ICT's Bhuchung Tsering, Head, Research & Monitoring Unit were in Geneva to monitor the review and to help organize a side event spotlighting China's human rights abuses against Tibetans.

YOUR IMPACT: Thank you to ICT members who responded to our petition to UN member states, urging them to raise the Tibet issue at the China Review. Your voices made a real difference!

CELEBRATING LOSAR, TIBETAN NEW YEAR

February 10-12 brought the joyful celebration of Losar and the start of the year of the Wood Dragon 2151 in the Tibetan lunar calendar. The dragon is a symbol of strength, wisdom and good fortune that signals a year of power, ambition, and creativity. During this time of year, Tibetans around the world set up altars, hang prayer flags, and wear new clothing. They spend time with family, make offerings, and prepare and eat delicious foods.

To welcome the new year, the Dalai Lama shared a video message for Tibetans inside Tibet and in exile, while the Tibetan sikyong (president) and other political leaders offered Losar greetings, too.

In the United States, the State Department hosted a Losar celebration on Feb. 13 for Tibetan Americans and US officials. The event featured a video greeting from Secretary of State Antony J. Blinken, remarks by Under Secretary Uzra Zeya and Deputy Secretary Richard R. Verma, participation by Deputy Secretary of State Kurt M. Campbell, performances by Tibetan musicians and dancers, and a speech by the Dalai Lama's Representative to North America Namgyal Choedup. ICT's President Tencho Gyatso was honored to help emcee the event.

As the celebration was taking place at the State Department, on Capitol Hill, members of Congress were speaking on the House floor in support of the Promoting a Resolution to the Tibet-China Dispute Act, which was approved in the House on February 15!

At our DC office, the ICT team set up a Losar altar including traditional foods, candies, fruits, breads, barley, rice, khatas, candles, flags, and more.

Losar was also celebrated in the halls of UK Parliament this year for the first time ever, with nearly 80 parliamentarians and supporters attending.

FILM SCREENING

AMALA

The life and struggle of the Dalai Lama's sister
A film by Geleck Passang

ICT held a screening of the film Amala on April 11 in Washington, DC. Amala tells the story of the Dalai Lama's younger sister Jetsun Pema, her struggles, loss, and success that earned her the epithet Amala or "mother." Using rare footage from her historic visit to Tibet in 1980, the film also gives insight into the state of education inside Tibet. After her sister died, Jetsun Pema took charge of the Nursery for Tibetan Refugee Children in a small town in northern India. Under her leadership, the nursery transformed into one of the most successful Tibetan refugee schools – the Tibetan Children's Village School.

The film was followed by a discussion with Jetsun Pema, who is the mother of ICT President Tencho Gyatso.

TIBETAN ACTIVIST RECEIVES STATE DEPARTMENT RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AWARD

Tibetan activist Lhadon Tethong received a US State Department International Religious Freedom Award as part of the Department's 25th anniversary celebration of the International Religious Freedom Act, which President Bill Clinton signed into law in 1998. The act elevated the role of religious freedom in US foreign policy.

At the award ceremony on January 18, Richard Verma, deputy secretary of state for management and resources, hailed Lhadon for "us[ing] technology to support Tibetans and others facing Chinese repression."

Lhadon, who was one of several to receive the awards, is the co-founder and director of Tibet Action Institute, an organization that combines digital communication and strategic non-violent action to advance the Tibetan freedom movement.

According to the State Department, the awards recognize individuals for "their courage and commitment to promoting and defending religious freedom globally."

Staff of ICT and the Office of Tibet, including Representative Namgyal

Choedup, were among those invited to attend the awards ceremony.

Lhadon also recently appeared on ICT's Tibet Talks podcast to discuss China's boarding schools in Tibet, which have separated over 1 million Tibetan children from their families, language, religion, and culture. You can listen to her November 30, 2023 Tibet Talk: China's Boarding Schools in Tibet at savetibet.org/live.

EU PARLIAMENT URGES CHINA TO STOP ITS BOARDING SCHOOL CAMPAIGN TO ASSIMILATE YOUNG TIBETANS

In December 2023, the European Parliament adopted a resolution denouncing the "abduction and forced assimilation of Tibetan children" by the Chinese government via state-run boarding schools, which nearly a million Tibetan students attend. The resolution claims Chinese authorities are using state-run boarding schools in Tibet to "eliminate the distinct linguistic, cultural, and religious traditions among Tibetans and other minorities."

A UN report in 2023 detailed how boarding school students are often kidnapped from their homes and forced to assimilate into the majority Han culture via the curriculum at school. Discussions of Tibetan culture, history or religion are banned, and classes are taught exclusively in Mandarin.

Salima Yenbou from the Renew Party introduced the legislation, which calls on Chinese officials to put an end to state-run boarding schools and allow private Tibetan schools to be established.

Vincent Metten, the EU Policy Director of the International Campaign for Tibet, commented on the adoption of the resolution by a 477-14 vote: "This shows the growing international attention [on] the boarding school system in Tibet."

EU PRESSES CHINA ON HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS AT EU-CHINA SUMMIT

During the 24th EU-China Summit in early December 2023, EU leaders again voiced concerns about human rights violations, including in Tibet.

In a joint press conference of the European Union leaders that followed, President Charles Michel said, "For the European Union, human rights and fundamental freedoms are universal and we will never turn a blind eye to human rights cases. Today we welcome China's resumption of the human rights dialogue. It's a step in the right direction and today we continued this conversation at the highest level. We also highlighted cases of specific concern, such as the human rights violations in Tibet."

► DERGE DAM PROTESTS

In February, Chinese police reportedly arrested more than a thousand Tibetans after mass protests broke out in eastern Tibet. The Tibetans of Derge (Chinese: Dege) county were trying to stop a hydropower dam project that would force residents of two villages to abandon their homes. It would also reportedly destroy six Tibetan Buddhist monasteries containing centuries-old religious murals.

In this live Tibet Talk, ICT Research Analyst Tenzin Norgay and President Tencho Gyatso answer member questions about the Derge dam protests. Together they explain what the protests mean, how the international community has responded, and where we go from here.

NEW ICT REPORT:

NATIONAL PARKS, RURAL REVITALIZATION?

A Report on the Future of Tibet's Peopled Landscapes

Red meat machine or national parks reserve: What is China's vision for Tibet's future?

Released early this year, this new report examines two large-scale policy initiatives—rural revitalization and national parks—that are resulting in a tightening Chinese grip on Tibet, which China has illegally occupied for 65 years.

These two policies are upending Tibetans' traditional lifestyles, displacing Tibetan pastoralists, and violating the Tibetan people's Buddhist values. At the same time, the manner in which these rural revitalization and national parks initiatives are being implemented is putting them in conflict with each other:

The former is transforming Tibet into a massive slaughterhouse for industrial-sized meat production to meet the demands of the Chinese population, while the latter is seeking to remake Tibet as a pristine wilderness for tourists.

“China now has competing master narratives mapping the future of rural Tibet as territories of meat production or tourism consumption,” the report says. “These narratives contradict each other with little clarity as to which will prevail.”

This report is available to read in full on our website at savetibet.org/parks.

ROWELL FUND FOR TIBET ANNOUNCES 2024 AWARDS

The Rowell Fund for Tibet's Board of Advisors has awarded $24,775 in grants to support seven distinctive projects on a range of critical themes, including literature and journalism, women's empowerment programs, and cultural preservation through mediums such as film, architecture, and visual arts.

This year marks 20 years of the Rowell Fund, which is managed by ICT and was established in memory of lifelong Tibet supporters Galen and Barbara Rowell, who tragically passed in a plane crash in 2002. Since 2004, the fund has granted over $700,000 to support projects both inside and outside of Tibet.

"In the last two decades, the Rowell Fund Board of Advisors has helped raise or donate about half a million dollars, with ICT contributing the rest," said John Ackerly, member of the board of advisors of the Rowell Fund for Tibet. "This targeted investment in young Tibetan leaders has been a hallmark of the Rowell Fund, and we are pleased that this year, five of the seven recipients are women."

This year's recipients include a legal empowerment and education program for Tibetan women in India; a written piece exploring Tibetans' hopes and anxieties around the reincarnation of His Holiness the Dalai Lama; a film called "Dharamsala" that explores identity and community in transition; a Tibetan women's health project advancing gynecologic care; a project documenting Tibetan vernacular architecture and construction methods; a comparative analysis of works by women writers in Tibet and in exile; and a project showcasing the works of twenty Tibetan artists in various artistic mediums. As we went to press we learned that founding member of the Board of Advisors of the Rowell Fund for Tibet David Breashears passed away. To read more about his contributions to the Tibetan people and the environment, read "Remembering David Breashears" on our website at savetibet.org. David will be greatly missed.

WELCOMING TSEJIN KHANDO, OUTREACH AND ENGAGEMENT OFFICER

In December 2023, we welcomed a new staff member to the ICT team at our headquarters in Washington, DC. Tsejin Khando, a Tibetan American from New York City, serves as Outreach and Engagement Officer for the organization and will play an active role in serving our members.

Tsejin previously worked with Tibet organizations including Filming for Tibet, smartvote Tibet/Project Democracy, and Yakpo Collective, a Tibetan contemporary art collective. In her free time, she enjoys playing the mandolin.

Tsejin is eager to make a difference in her new role at ICT. She says, "The work that ICT has done and continues to do for Tibetans inside and outside Tibet is phenomenal. To be able to work alongside and learn from my colleagues, many of whom have been working for the Tibetan cause for decades, and be able to contribute to a cause that is so close to home is a once in a lifetime opportunity. For me, it is my biggest hope that I can be of benefit to my community in some small way." You can hear from Tsejin directly through our popular "Why Tibet Matters" series of brief videos about the Tibet issue on Facebook, Instagram, and X!

Welcome Tsejin, we are so glad to have you on board!

Is Tibetan Democracy in Exile Failing?

By Bhuchung K. Tsering

On December 21, 2023, just four days before its rescheduled session was to begin, the Tibetan Parliament-in-Exile announced that it was being postponed again to March, this time due to lack of a quorum. The initial postponement was made on Sept. 28, 2023, when the Tibetan parliamentary secretariat issued a terse notice saying, "The remaining business of the 6th session of the 17th Tibetan Parliament-in-Exile has been postponed due to the absence of the requisite quorum needed for the session to constitute." This brought an uncertain close to the latest development in Tibetan diaspora politics ... it left some observers wondering whether Tibetan democracy in exile is failing.

CALLING ALL MEMBERS: URGE YOUR SENATORS TO SUPPORT THE RESOLVE TIBET ACT

The Promoting a Resolution to the Tibet-China Dispute Act (known as the Resolve Tibet Act) is a crucial piece of bipartisan legislation that will strengthen US efforts to push the Chinese government to resolve the longstanding Tibet-China conflict through dialogue.

The bill will pressure the Chinese government to resume negotiations—which have been stalled since 2010—with the Dalai Lama's envoys or the democratically elected Tibetan government in exile.

It also officially recognizes the inaccuracy of the Chinese claim that Tibet has been part of China since ancient times and empowers the State Department to actively counter China's disinformation campaign about Tibetan history, people, and institutions.

On February 15, the Resolve Tibet Act, which was introduced by Reps. Jim McGovern (D-MA) and Michael McCaul (R-TX), passed in the House. On April 16, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved the bill, clearing the way for a full Senate vote. Now our advocacy focus is on passing the Senate version of the legislation, introduced by Sens. Jeff Merkley (D-OR) and Todd Young (R-IN).

WE NEED YOUR HELP TO CALL ON SENATORS TO SUPPORT THIS EXTREMELY IMPORTANT BILL!

PLEASE CLIP HERE & MAIL YOUR PETITION IN THE ENCLOSED ENVELOPE.

TO: MY US SENATORS FROM: A CONCERNED CITIZEN

Dear Senators,

As your constituent and a voter, I encourage you to support passage of the Resolve Tibet Act, S.138, the companion bill to H.R.533, which the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved with overwhelming support in a vote on April 16. This legislation takes a stand against China's human rights crimes in Tibet and denial of the Tibetan people's right to self-determination.

The need for your action is underscored by more than 75% of Tibetan schoolchildren being separated from their families and placed in state-run boarding schools that teach predominantly in Mandarin and undermine Tibetan culture and language.

The Resolve Tibet Act will make it official policy that the US government recognizes Tibetan people, history, and institutions and that the Tibet-China conflict is unresolved. This bill strikes at the heart of the Chinese Communist Party's lies about Tibet and elevates the US government's support for the people of Tibet.

Please vote for the Resolve Tibet Act and make clear that you will never abandon Tibetans.

Thank you,
